FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WICHITA MARKETS,

Receipts of Live Stock at the Union Stock Yards for 48 hours-75 cattle, 671 hogs and 1129 sheep. Shipments, 321 cattle, 441 hogs and 1129 sheep. The cattle supply was too small to cause any activity on the market and very little interest was manifest. The market ruled steady and most of the offerings sold at good values. The packers were again on the market today and nearly all the hogs sold. Tomorrow they will be on the market as usual ready to take all the offerings. Old Mexico was buying heavy hogs again today and shippers can now be assured they will find a ready market here for all their heavy hogs from now on. Bulk of sales at $3 45.

ELZO ALLEN'S $20,000.

He Cheeks Out That Much of His Company's Money and Abscords. Elzo Allen, confidential elerk, etc., of the Austin company of financiers and money loaners at Kansas City, disappeared the other evening mysteriously, only to be ar-Though he is a man of very peculiar appearance, with a neck so stiff that be can not turn his head without turning his body and asingularly maimed hand, no conductor or brakeman on any Kansas City road remembered socing him the evening of his flight and no news of him could be had elsewhere for days. At 8 o'clock p. m. ha bade his young wife and baby good-by, and that was the latest information until the hour of his arrest. The afternoon of his departure he drews check on the Un ton National bank for $20,000 of the Austin com-司馬 pany's money and got it cashed so easily that the company's offihe did not take the have there. He as well as not says Cashier Lewis, for ELZO ALLEN. "he was perfectly ool and unconcerned, just as if he were in the ordinary course of business." "Rather a large sum on one check, ian't " asked the cashier. "Yes, I have just closed a loan with an Arkansas man for $60,000, and he wants half the money to-night. Please make it in big bills; as large as you can, Mr. It was done, and, after counting the money very carefully, Mr. Elzo Allen dis-appeared into the wide, wide world. The Austin company at once began scarching eaggrly for him. The members say they will convict him if it costs another $20,000.

And the company is rich enough to afford DENVER'S CHAMPION THIEF.

He Did Compel President Moffett to Sign as Represented. The mystery about the hotly disputed and sensational Denver robbery of some months ago is fully cleared up, and Mansfield King is the robber. By his own confession, as well as a mass of collateral proof, he is a murderer and horse thief as well as the most daring bank robber of the day, and, being satisfied that his criminal career is at an end he is aiding the authorities in very way possible to get at the evidence. He has even been so accommodating as to pose for a photograph showing how he robbed President Moffett, of the First National bank of Denver. He held a revolver in one hand and a small can of mitro-glycerine in the other. and cornering the president in his pelled him to sign a check for $21,000 and then com-pelled him to send an assistant to the cashier's deak for MANSFIELD KING. credible at the time, but as both parties agree on the facts it may now be accepted. King's last crime was stealing a horse near Clayton, Mo.; for this he was arrested and was soon identified as the Denver robber. The record of his crimes is a long one; but he will be tried for the Denver rebbery, and as his guilt is certain, his criminal career

FIVE MILES HIGH ON A TRAPEZE.

Adventures of a Parachute Man Whos Parachute Got Away from Him. Great excitement was caused at Croydon in connection with the ascent from the old fair field of Professor Higgins, the parachutist, and for several hours doubts were entertained as to his safety. The balloon, which had been named "The Duke's Motto," and was of the capacity of 12,000 cubic feet, was fully charged by 5 o'clock. Higgins said the direction of the wind, which was northeast, would neces sitate his traveling a considerable height. but he hoped to return to the field in about half an hour. When he gave the signal to the attendants to "Let ge," the machine gradually rose, and appeared to go in the direction of Norwood. Upon reaching an altitude of something like 4,000 feet, the parachute became detached from the net of the balloon, which was evidently proceeding upward at a great rate, as the parachute was fully expanded, although inverted. It was now evident that something was wrong with the apparatus, and, amid breathless excitement, the parachute dropped from the balloon and fell into a garden in East Croydon. The balloon rap-o'clock, however, all fear was dispelled by the receipt of a telegram, stating that Hig-gins had landed safely near Tunbridge. Higgins and his balloon arrived at East Croydon by the 9:30 train. In an interview with a correspondent Higgins stated that he had experienced the most wonderful of all his aerial voyages. When he had reached the height of 4,000 feet he began to get into a strong current. and the balloon twisted right round. The current then caught his parachute, causing the wooden ring of it to catch him very tightly under the arms. The test cord which held the parachute then broke. Directly, that happened be saw that the parachute was banging below him fully in-flated, and the pressure on him was so great that it was impossible for him to descend into the middle of the town with any thing like safety. He therefore opened his penknife with his teeth and cut the parachute away. This caused the balloon to shoot up 6,000 feet higher, and on reaching that altitude he met another current, which brought him back, and he saw nothing until he passed through some sleet and snow. He could hear, however, the sound-

All of a sudden he found himself in darkness, caused, he presumed, by the snow and the thick atmosphere. He was in this snow storm for at least ten minutes, and when he had passed through it the sun was shining beautifully. Below him he could see what appeared to be snowy mountains rising up and down for miles. He could see a distance of some forty clear miles, and was able to discern the sun glistening on the water at Brighton. It was evident to him that he was going toward Tunbridge Wells. He found the air getting very sharp and keen; icides were hanging from his mustache, and he had no sooner rubbed them off than others formed. For a few minutes he was quite deaf. He new seemed to be descending on the mountains of snow and he thought he wes getting near Hast-ings or Brighton. He could small the sea. Thinking he was coming down, he took hold of four of his guy ropes, and pulled the balloon partly over on one side to allow the gas to escape at the mouth.

The balloon then turned round three times, and he felt he was descending. He did nothing more to the balloon, merely sitting on his trapeze watching for terra firma, which he did not see for some time. At length he saw plowed fields, and close by there was what he took to be a large park, with white roads across it. He then traveled about five or six miles at a very rapid pace, and saw more plowed fields, which he thought would be a suitable place to land on. When he was about 2,000 feet from the earth he prepared to descend by hanging by one arm to his trapeze rope as if he were using his parachute. When his feet touched the ground the balloon, which was in front of him, dragged him for ten yards, and then rebounded some sixty feet in the air, between two trees. Two labor ers ran from opposite directions, and, in W response to his signals, they arrived just as he came down a second time, and held the balloon until he let out the gas. He found that he had landed on a farm in the occu thirty miles from Croydon. In reply to questions, he said that at one time he must have been five miles above the earth, the highest he had ever been. He added that the balloon had no escape valve.-London

How It Happened used to be told of an ambitious citizen of Pennsylvania, who rather indiscreetly had set himself up as a candidate for some po-litical office, and who, after the election, was found to have received only one vote. The candidate's mortification was extreme, and, to increase his chagrin, all his neighbors talked as if it were a matter of himself. This annoyed him so much that he finally offered a suit of clothes, to be worth not less than $50, to the lone woter if he would declare himself.

A Dutchman responded to this appeal, proved his claim and called for the reward. "How did it happen," inquired the can-didate, taken quite by surprise, "how did it happen that you voted for me

The Dutchman hesitated, but on being pressed he said: "Ef I told you, you don't go back on den clo'es, you promise? "Oh, no; you shall have the clothes, any take in de teecket." A Wife's Obligations. Secretary A. O. Wright, of the state board of charities and reform, visited the poorhouse and jail in Wankesha-county recently. In the poorhouse he found a case that is peculiar and will find its way into the courts. It appears that a man pos-sessed of considerable property-made it all over to his wife, who subsequently sent him to the poorhouse. On learning the facts Secretary Wright advised that an action in equity be brought in the courts against the wife to compel herito pay for the maintenance of her husbandout of the property. In general, while a imshand is under legal obligations to support his wife, the wife is not similarly obliged to support her husband. Secretary Wright balds, however, that in accepting the property the wife made an implied contract to support her husband, and that the same would be enforced by a court of equity. There are
